Meet epitaph for such as thou, With wasted frame and drooping brow, On whom this instant every eye Rains scorn's condensed artillery-The clown's charse laugh-the ribild's leer-The joror's scate affecting succr-Th' official's shrug-the counsel's smile, (Nibbling his idle pen the while)-The judge's sly but solemo pun-Have not all galled the, guilty one? Thou common mark for shafeed murb,

Thou wreigh, without a friend on earth! What's writ is writ-thou'st heard thy doom Depart, and give tresh felous room; Hence! thy allotted time to dwell With those who make their bed in hell-Beneath thy fierce taskmaster grim To toil with trembling, weary himb-'he long laborious day to curse, Yet dred night's sleepless fever wors :-To chafe and free till though accain I'by bacats of gio and guilt again; Leper! from every human hearth, Cast out, without a triend on earth.

Thou'rt gone; but yonder greedy gate Again shall lead the to thy fate-Amid thy co mates' ruffin dio, Ose: more to shiver and to sia; Phrough London's midnight streets agair. l'o plash io winter's dr zziing rain ; Riffing that dread sepulchral cough, That soon or late must cut thee off-Must give the buddled to thy shell From some foul garrec's fetid cell. A home within the grave gard's girth At last, thou friendless on the oarth?

No stoic I-of cime and care I've had my birthright's ample share; Yet sooner than possess his heart Who with the fiend's consumerh art, First lured the from thy father's cit, (Perchance in some green shelter'd spot). And led and left thee till Despair Produced thee bound, a felon there-Sooner though bribed by jowelled power, Then risk his death-bed's damning hour, I'd toil for bread-in misery's dearth-Through life with -Blackwood's Magazine.

PRACTICAL KNOWLEDGE -Very few people know how to meet an emergency. The majority are prope to remain on the suppy side of life, which, for their own comfort, is wise enough. But every one should keep eyes and ears open to the misfortunes of others, and be prepared to meet an emergency waen t comes. Any family is liable to sudden accident or ma'ady; each sees in-zach day-has its dangers. Even though we may not be called on by sudmeans of a drill from 200 to 300 pounds to the den accident to minister to our immediate fam acre. The above price is net each for the forilies, our neighbors often need aid and counsel, mula, delivered free on board the cars or steamand support to trying experiences; and these a stranger can often render with more effect than a relative. The first requisite to meet an emergency, however sight, however appalling, is an rual mind. If we allow ourselves to be upb lanced by fear, or terror, or surprise. or grief, or any other emotion or passion, we loss com nacd of our resources, and of ability to use them in such a way as best to repair or prevent the present or impending calamity. The emotional part of a disaster must be ignored-t'e practical only studied. Next in value to equ cimity and presence of mind is a knowledge of what to do in the premise-; and this knuwledge cannot come on the spur of the moment or by inspiration-it must be already in store and waiting a summons into assion. To this end it will be well to note in the mind or a common place book any items concerning accident or andden distamper -such as sunstroke, a broken limb, a fainting fit, a severe out or poisoningwhich may be of use, that we may be ready with them when the time comes. THE MARRIED DWARF -Toe dwarf, Mrs. Wm. Burnell, upon whom the Cararian oprestion was performed in Philadelphia, Wednesday night, was alive at last accounts, .nd with a fair prospect of recovery. The infan, is in excellent health. The mother was born a Richmond, Mass., in 1848. She is forty two inches in height, of dark complexion and has dark brown hair and eyes. Her father was a dwarf, about the same size as he self, while her mother, who died when she was a b by, was a woman of ordinary s.z. Mr. Burnell lived at her home in Richmond until about four years ago, when an agent of P. T. Barnum engaged her, and she made her first appearance as a living curiosity with the great showman, who billed her as "the smallert 'iving lady." After leaving Barnum she exhibited with a number of museums traveling shows and in New York. Last season she joined a circus com. any and was exhibited at one of the side tho #8 Mrs. Burnell is better known under her maiden name of Lena Gleason. About nine mentas ago she married Wm. Surnell, a negro ministral, then connected with the same show Birnell's brother at the same ti ne married the Circassian girl. Mr. Burnell is not a dwarf, but a full grown man
